Sci-Fi 2015 Vintage Calendar

Synopsis

This collection of cover art from the Golden Age of Science Fiction captures the explosion of creativity, optimism, and experimentation that took place in America during the 1920s-50s. Unknown writers such as Asimov, Bradbury, Sturgeon, and Clark got their start between the covers of these vintage pulp magazines, and the artwork was considered to be just as inspiring. Collector's Sixth Edition.

Customer Reviews

At last, the 2015 edition of a calendar we senior science fiction fans can absolutely love. Here we have 12 more vintage covers from those loved science fiction pulps of the 1930's and 40's. This year, there are more covers from Planet Stories than there have been in the past. The covers include the names of loved authors like Ray Bradbury, Poul Anderson, and Leigh Brackett. The pictures are of course those bright action illustrations depicting brave male heroes luscious women, and frightful BEMs (bug-eyed monsters). I'll have my calendar refreshing those good old days hanging on my wall by Jan. 1.

Love it! The calendar has bold, vibrant colors and you can detach the pictures for framing should you wish. I received this right away and would definitely purchase another item from this vendor!

I love the fact that these pictures can be used as posters after the year is over. The perforated pages mean that the picture is not damaged and they are the perfect size for display purposes

I have mid-century decor and this calendar is a happy place between my love of vintage and my husband's love of sci-fi. The quality is great as is the size.

Just as advertised. Wish it had a bit more variety of sources, but it's very nice. Note the size - when opened and hung, it's pretty long.

Great quality. The pages are perforated so you can remove just the artwork. I've framed several. They look fantastic.

I love these calendars. I have been buying one for the past 5 or so years. Nice size, great images.

Love these calendars. Some of the magazine titles stories can still be found!
