Street Safety Hints

Synopsis

The cheerful little boy on this board book's cover introduces the important idea of street safety to preschool toddlers, as well as to kids who are starting school. Children learn to recognize zebra stripes for safety at road crossings. They are introduced to road signs and their meanings and to traffic lights. They learn safety rules when walking to their destinations, riding their bicycles, and even when playing outside on their scooters. They learn about the importance of wearing safety helmets when bicycling, and of using seat belts and special children's seats when riding in the family car. This picture-filled book teaches the significance of developing safety habits in a lighthearted way that kids will find both entertaining and instructive. (

Customer Reviews

My son adored this book as a toddler. He loved the colors, the shapes, the kids, everything. I would try to hide the book from him (because I had actually gotten it for my Kindergarten aged daughter and he was chewing on it, giving it his best love) but he lurked about, found all my little spots, and then HE began hiding it from ME.
